

Tomika T

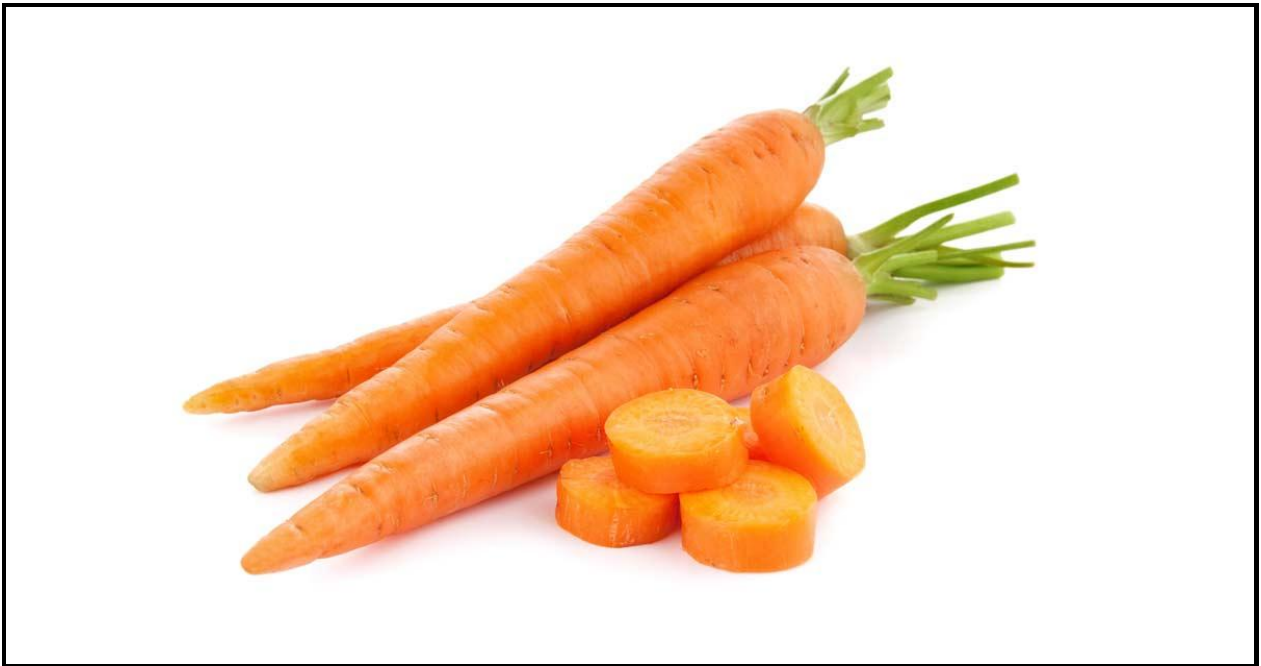

3/30/22

Newsletter

Pet(Hamster)

My animal that I am doing a newsletter on is a dwarf hamster . Dwarf hamsters are small mammals with stout bodies, short tails, and stubby legs. They are usually two to three inches in length, although some can be smaller. There are ten species in total seven species belong to the genus Cricetulus, while the remaining three belong to the genus Phodopus. Their lifespan is 2-3 years.The Gestation period: 15 – 18 days. Hamsters are also in the rodent family like rats,mice,roaches, Although hamsters can be feisty at times and friendly most times.Hamsters were “discovered” in the Syrian Desert less than 100 years ago....Hamsters are nocturnal creatures. ...Hamsters love to hoard their food. ...Syrian hamsters do not like company. ... Hamsters like to sleep in enclosed spaces.Hamsters eat sunflower seed,carrots,boiled eggs,wood chips,etc.....The hamsters world population is around 57 million which is a great number close to humans.As scientists warn the tiny rodent could be gone in 30 years, efforts to reintroduce it to parts of Europe are on the rise. Once found burrowing through grasslands across Europe and western Asia, the hamsters' range has shrunk dramatically.In a survey released last year, the American Pet Products Association, a trade group, noted that 6.2 million American households keep a small animal as a pet, a figure that grew by 800,000 households since a previous survey in 2019. The association noted that 27% of those 6.2 million households have a hamster.Beige is a rare colour, because it is produced by breeding together a hamster with the rust and dark grey gene, which are, themselves, rare. The beige variety is often smaller than the rest of the litter and may have a kinked tail due to the Dark Gray gene.Hamsters are intelligent creatures who can even learn their name. If you talk to your hamster and use their name frequently enough to get them used to hearing it, they might even learn to come when called. A hamster's teeth are constantly growing.And a healthy hamster's teeth are yellow if they are white something is wrong. Well this is all the information i have for now folks.

SCROLL DOWN.....

SCROLL DOWN.....

